

Citroën e-Berlingo offers more for the money

The comprehensively updated e-Berlingo is now available to order from Citroën. Thanks to a new battery, the WLTP standard range has been increased by over 20 percent to up to 345 kilometers. The model has a new brand logo and different headlights at the front, a more up-to-date infotainment system with a ten-inch screen and wireless smartphone mirroring as well as comfort seats. The standard equipment now includes a heat pump and an eleven kW charger.

The dashboard has also been completely renewed and now features a black and white digital instrument cluster. In future, the steering wheel can be heated on request. The number of storage options in the interior has been increased. Prices start at 36,940 euros. That is 3800 euros less than the previous model. (aum)

Images for article

Photo: Autoren-Union Mobilität/Stellantis
