The ID 2 All becomes the ID Polo

Instead of numbers, the Volkswagen ID family will once again have real model names. The ID 2 All concept car will become the ID Polo. The brand's first all-electric small car following the discontinuation of the e-Up is due to be launched next year. At the IAA Mobility in Munich next week, camouflaged pre-production vehicles of the ID Polo and the ID Polo GTI will be on display. Volkswagen will also be presenting the ID Cross Concept on Sunday. The study provides a preview of the electric counterpart to the T-Cross planned for the end of 2026.

All other future e-models will also be given "established names" (VW). This should also make it easier for customers to find their way around the range of combustion and battery-powered vehicles. (aum)
